U.S. Agency Head Visits CAU Art Galleries

As a kick-off to Black History Month, Anne-Imelda Radice (center), director of the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS), visits the CAU Art Galleries to examine restored collections of significant African-American art. The CAU collection is a superb example of how fragile works of art are being preserved. IMLS is the primary federal source of support for the nation's 122,000 libraries and 17,500 museums. Joining Radice during the tour are (left to right) Aristide Collins, vice president for Institutional Advancement and University Relations at CAU; Tina Dunkley, director of the gallery; Dr. Dorcas Bowles, vice president for Academic Affairs; and Dr. Schroeder Cherry, counselor to Director Radice.
