

VALEISHA BUTTERFIELD JONES

Valeisha Butterfield Jones is an award-winning and globally recognized business leader with proven impact at the intersection of technology, politics and entertainment.

She currently serves as the Global Head of Inclusion for Google, responsible for accelerating diversity, equity and inclusion outcomes for underrepresented communities internally and externally across the global brand. Her portfolio includes Google's work with Employee Resource Groups, national community organizations, media platforms and Education Equity with focus on minority serving institutions.

Prior to joining Google, Valeisha served as the National Youth Vote Director for the Obama for America campaign, delivering one of the highest youth voter turnouts in American history and in the Obama Administration as the Deputy Director of Public Affairs for International Trade.

She also served as the Senior Vice President of Rush Communications, home of Def Jam Enterprises and apparel brands Baby Phat and Phat Farm as well as the National Director of Diversity and Inclusion for the Alzheimer's Association.

Her leadership has been featured by Ebony Magazine's Power 100, The Root 100, Essence Magazine's Top 40 Under 40, Elle Magazine's Top 25 Most Inspiring Women, Forbes Magazine, Fortune, Glamour Magazine and others.

Valeisha is also the co-founder and CEO of the Women in Entertainment Empowerment Network (WEEN) and serves on the Board of Directors for ColorComm, MC Lyte's Hip Hop Sisters Network and iVote for America.

Valeisha is a wife, mom, proud graduate of Clark Atlanta University, podcaster and author. Follow Valeisha on IG/Twitter @valeisha and stay connected at www.valeisha.org.